ORPHAN CHILDREN

Governor Marshall Comments on Work of Charity.

Governor Marshall has received a copy of the report of the recent Washington Conference on the care of dependent children. The impelling reason for this meeting was the fact that about 100,000 children are inmates of orphan's homes in the United States, most of whom are waiting, longing, for an opportunity to live in families like other children.

In this conference Indiana had a creditable part. In commenting upon it and upon the great work that is being done in the State to save children, Governor Marshall said today: "As a member and president of the Board of State Charities, it is a pleasure to say that the program outlined in this conference is largely in actual operation in this State. The work of many of our children's organizations and institutions is useful and well done. That of the Board of State Charities in supervising these organizations and in finding homes in families for children who are dependent upon the public, is of great value, both to the children and to the taxpayer. I have had brought to my attention the cause of many unfortunate children needing care and have gone over many reports of our agents who have visited children placed in families. The need is great and the service rendered is valuable. Last year our orphan's homes cared for a total of 2,729 children, 1,582 of whom were in the institutions at the beginning of the year and 1,147 received afterward. Homes in families were found for 659 of these children. The Board's agents placed 200 last year. At the Board meeting this week, reports of visits to about 400 children in family homes, placed by various agencies, showed 360, or 90 per cent., to be doing well or fairly well.

"We believe there is a child for every proper childless home. We believe there is a good home for every normal child. We believe there are many vacant homes. To such we say, let us help you to find a child and at the same time help a little child to find a home. The Board will be pleased to have the co-operation of all our people in its effort to provide homes for these children. A letter addressed to the Board of State Charities, Indianapolis, will receive immediate attention."

Entertained.

Several young folks had the pleasure of spending Thursday evening at the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Carter two miles east of town.

Part of the crowd went in automobiles the rest drove in carriages. The house was very tastefully decorated with sunflowers suitable to the season.

Instrumental music was furnished by Miss Stella Rosenfield, Miss Myrtle Cunningham and Mrs. Carter. Refreshments were served abundantly. They all left at a late hour declaring Mrs. Carter a charming hostess.

The party was given in honor of Miss Alice Miller, of Lexington Ky., and Miss Myrtle Cunningham, of Indianapolis, who are the guests of Mrs. Byford Cunningham and Mrs. O. E. Carter.

Brakeman Hurt.

Edgar Otto, an extra brakeman on the B. & O. S-W., met with quite a serious accident at Medora this morning about one o'clock. He had gone down with Conductor Carroll Bush on the Mitchell turn around and was on the return trip. He was running along the side of the track when he stumbled and fell over a pile of cross-ties. His bumps and bruises were quite painful but no bones were broken. A physician was summoned to look after his injuries. He is laying off but will probably be able to return to work again before many days.

J. H. Arthurs, an extra brakeman on the B. & O. S-W., will leave for Pittsburg, Pa., this afternoon to join his wife and mother, who have been visiting his sister, Mrs. Johnson, and other relatives there for the past month. Mr. Arthurs formerly lived in Pennsylvania. Next Monday is his thirtieth birthday and he will arrive at Pittsburg in time to celebrate the event with his relatives.

Miss J. M. Mayden and mother, of Craig, Neb., who were just coming from their home to visit their former home at Tunnelton, were carried by Friday afternoon and spent the night in Seymour. Mr. Craig is about seventy years of age and this is her first visit back here since going away twenty-seven years ago. She will find many changes in the country during that time.

Arthur Blue, of Fifth and Mill street, is improving from the effect of the injuries received about a week ago when he dropped something heavy on the end of his foot at Rivervale. He hopes to be able to return to work again in a few days.

Now is the time to try a bottle of Whitmer's Eureka kidney and liver regulator.

MISSOURI FARMER

Writes Open Letter to His Old Jackson County Friends.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:

Since I notice some accounts of big wheat yields in my old home county of Jackson I thought your readers might also be interested in knowing something about what we raise here in Buchanan county, Missouri.

We have had two very wet seasons here, something we do not often have. Much wheat was destroyed by the wet weather and much corn in the low land was drowned out. Yet we need not complain for we will have an average crop of both corn and wheat.

My two boys, Edgar and Silas, had in 150 acres of wheat that made 3200 bushels of No. 2 wheat. They sold it from the machine and for one car load they got $1.03 per bushel and for the balance they got $1.01 per bushel. How is that by your little truck patches back in old Jackson? Why don't you report your whole crop?

One machine started up on my place with eight bundle wagons and four grain wagons and with eight extra men. They threshed 370 acres that made 8000 bushels of wheat and they put it all in the car in five and a half days. How was that? Can any of you Jackson county boys beat it? Why don't some of you boys come west where you can raise wheat? If you want to go to a farming country you need not pass Missouri for she ranks with any of the other states. The soil is adapted to anything a farmer wants to raise—wheat, oats, corn, potatoes and tobacco all do well here. Down in the southern part of Buchanan and Platte counties they have the tobacco craze and they claim to have cleared all the way from $50 to $150 per acre last season. They have gone into the business this year on a larger scale.

We sowed all our wheat land in clover last February and it is now 20 inches high and we are turning it under. We grow alfalfa and get from four to five cuttings a season and it averages about a ton to the acre each cutting, and is worth $15 a ton. Some readers of the REPUBLICAN will remember that I was born and reared in Redding township, Jackson county. I came here in 1880 and rented the farm I now own. I have 200 acres and my boys own 160 acres, all in one body. Land is worth three times as much as it was when I came. I paid $30 and $40 an acre and my boys paid $80 three years ago and we have been offered $100. I live one mile west of Halls and five miles northeast of Rushville, on R. F. D. No. 2.

Brief Is Filed.

James Bingham, attorney-general, acting for the state in the appealed case of George McPherson against the state, an action brought to determine the constitutionality of the county option act of the special session of 1908, has filed with the clerk of the court a brief of 131 pages, in which is summed up the result of an exhaustive study of the act, with scores of authorities.

The arguments of the attorney-general in the main are that the act is constitutional; that the title of the act is sufficient, and in no way operates to mar its effectiveness; that the act does not confer legislative powers on the voters of the counties of the state; that it does not change the problem of the liquor traffic from a judicial to a political question, or from license to prohibition; that it does not take away the judicial powers of the boards of county commissioners or the courts respecting retail liquor dealers' licenses; that the act does not delegate legislative power to the people; that the applicant for retailer's license still has his day in court and retains the power to make application to the board of county commissioners for the issuance of such license to himself; that the measure is in no wise a prohibition statute, and that the question submitted to the voters in a county option election is a determination of fact, and not a determination of a law.

SPELLING BEE

Old-time Practice to be Revived in Public Schools.

The old-time "spelling bee" is to be revived in Indiana schools this year, with the hope that school children will thereby attain that perfection of spelling which is boasted by the products of the schools of the "good old days." Furthermore, the uncles and aunts and the fathers and mothers of the present-day pupils will be invited to spell down the school children and determine if they have a right to condemn present systems of teaching.

This is one of the points brought out in the new course of study which has been prepared by R. J. Ale, superintendent of public instruction, and which will be distributed among the 18,000 teachers of the state soon after Aug. 20.

"The charge is frequently made," says Dr. Ale, "perhaps with much good reason, that pupils nowadays do not spell as well as their fathers and mothers did in the 'good old day.' The spelling school was an institution that undoubtedly was an aid in gaining efficiency. A revival of the old-time 'spelling bee' might prove to be both profitable and enjoyable. Why not call in the fathers and mothers, uncles and aunts, and settle the question in Indiana whether our boys and girls are as deficient in this important branch of study as some would have us believe they are? It would increase the community interest, aid in making the school the social center and bring parents and teachers into closer relationship and help in making better spellers."

The Prettiest Girl in Seymour.

"My niece," said a well known man the other day, "is often called the prettiest girl in Seymour. I believe half the compliments she gets are due to her shirtwaists. They are always as clean and dainty looking as a snowflake. She's mighty particular about them. She won't use the cheap, ordinary rosin soaps for washing, but buys 'Easy Task Soap' you hear so much talk about. It seems that 'Easy Task Soap' just naturally goes after the dirt and doesn't eat into and rot the fabrics like the common yellow rosin soaps. It costs the same—a nickel a cake."

Another Case For Police.

Since publishing the article Friday in regard to the loafers' desecration at the church of the Nazarene, which the reports say have become habitual, we learn that the same is true, and in some respects to a greater degree at the A. M. E. church. Both white and colored boys make the front steps a loafing place and on some occasions it has been necessary for the pastor to stop during the services until someone from the congregation went out and drove away the boys who were interrupting the services by loud talking and disturbance on the steps or in the door. The police have been notified but so far no arrests have been made.

In a church in a neighboring city about two months ago a disturber attempted to break up a religious meeting when the pastor suddenly closed the services and placed the man under arrest till the police officers arrived to release him. The pastor being of an athletic disposition, the offender soon decided that the less resistance he offered the better. The man was arraigned before the proper judicial tribunal where it was not even necessary for the minister to appear as a witness against him and he was given a fine of $50.

Stepped On a Tack.

Donald Moore, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moore, of E. Second street, stepped on a tack on the sidewalk in front of their residence Friday evening. The tack was forced into the foot full length and has caused a very painful wound. The foot was badly swollen this morning. It is a pity that the one who is so careless as to throw tacks in the street or on the sidewalk can't be the one to suffer for it instead of some man with a bicycle or some innocent child.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

AUGUST 15, 1909

PAUL'S THIRD MISSIONARY JOURNEY. Lesson: Acts 19: 8-20.

GOLDEN TEXT:—The name of the Lord Jesus was magnified.—Acts 19: 17.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

On the return of Paul from his last journey he landed at Caesarea, where there must have been quite a company of believers besides the household of Cornelius and Philip and his four daughters. We can scarcely think of Paul passing through without fellowship with them, for at another time we find him and his company spending several days at Philip's home (xxi, 8, 9). The church at Jerusalem would be desirous to hear all about this great journey and the open doors in Europe, but the record simply says "saluted the church" (xxvii, 22), which may have included a rehearsal of the Lord's doings in Europe. Then during his stay at Antioch he would not fail to tell of those households at Philippi who accepted the Lord Jesus and of all the marvelous grace of God. This brings us to his third journey, concerning the beginning of which we read that "he went over all the country of Galatia and Phrygia in order, strengthening all the disciples (xxviii, 23). He has told us in his epistles how to be strong, so we can understand how he strengthened them. See Eph. iii, 16-19; vi, 10, 11; 1 Tim. ii, 1. There is no salvation, no strength, no victory, except in Christ Jesus, by His word and Spirit and by virtue of His precious blood.

When Paul left Priscilla and Aquila at Ephesus on his return home from Corinth he did not know that he was thus providing teachers for a man already mighty in the Scriptures as far as he knew them, but so it turned out (xxviii, 23-28). If increased knowledge of God is given to any of us it is that we may meekly instruct others who have not the same measure of light. Blessed that we may be a blessing is the Lord's way for His redeemed. When Paul reached Ephesus on this third tour he found disciples who had been taught by Apollos, evidently before he had been further instructed by Priscilla and Aquila, knowing only the baptism of John. When Paul had instructed them more fully they received through him in the name of the Lord Jesus a special filling of the Holy Spirit and spoke with tongues and prophesied (xix, 6).

It seems quite clear that when Aquila and Priscilla heard Apollos in the synagogue they did not attempt publicly to enlighten him, but with humility and loving tact took him privately, probably to their home, and expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly. Then it may have been that Apollos thought better to begin elsewhere with the new light he had received rather than where he would have to confess that he had not previously been fully taught in some things. That would have been human weakness, but this is only a suggestion. As to Apollos' two instructors, they were only humble tentmakers, and, while doubtless glad to help any who were willing to be helped, they did not feel called to act as public teachers.

For three months Paul spoke boldly in the synagogue at Ephesus, talking to them from the Scriptures concerning the kingdom of God (verse 8). See this great topic elsewhere in the Acts in chapters i, 3, 6; viii, 12; xiv, 22; xx, 25; xxviii, 31, and from other portions of Scripture seek to understand it and then let the Lord use you to help others to see that the kingdom of God is nothing less than the will of God done on earth as in heaven and that when it is fully come a righteous Israel shall be the earthly center, a blessing to all the nations on the earth, and Jesus, as son of David, shall occupy the throne of David at Jerusalem (Acts ii, 30; iii, 21; Luke i, 31-33; Isa. ix, 6, 7; Lxii, 1-3, 6, 7).

This is the age of "the mystery." The kingdom being postponed, the church, the body of Christ, is being gathered to reign with Him when He shall return in His glory. To this end we should carry the gospel everywhere, having the ambition which Paul had to preach Christ specially to those who have not yet heard of Him (Rom. xv, 20), and when the unbelievers resist and talk against "the way" then enter some other door in the same town or go to another city or town. When the Jews resisted, Paul continued teaching in Ephesus, but at another center, "in the school of one Tyrannus," and for two years he continued, so that all they which dwell in Asia heard the word of the Lord Jesus (verse 10). He was in Ephesus at this time about three years, warning people night and day and oftentimes with tears (xx, 31). This was the Lord's time to sow this part of His field, but in chapter xvi, 6, His time had not fully come. When we are fully yielded and can truly say "My times are in thy hand" (Ps. xxi, 15) we will rest in the Lord and dwell with Him to open or shut, as He shall please, having full confidence in His management. God for some reason wrought in a special and unusual way upon the bodies of people through Paul at this time (verses 11, 12), probably because the devil by his agencies was working specially too. But the Lord exceeded all the power of the adversary, the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified, the word of God grew mightily and prevailed, and there was what might be called a $50,000 bonfire of the devil's literature.

A Fashion Chat on the Styles of the Day.

If one were asked what material seemed to be most favored for the summer tailored suit, the reply would undoubtedly be Shantung, for a suit of this fabric is now considered almost an essential to a well stocked wardrobe.

Of the various weaves of pongee, of which Shantung is but one, there are textures suited to hard wear and appropriate for all traveling purposes, as well as finer qualities suitable for the most alluring evening gown. The range of weave and finish is indeed wide, some presenting a surface almost smooth and others a satiny texture not excelled by the handsomest satins.

Two attractive models, one presenting a medium length jacket, the other a short Eton, are here pictured and both are indicative of the prevailing modes.

The jump from the extremely long jacket to the short Eton is a long one, but for wear with the princess or high waisted gown the Eton is always attractive. At the present moment it is not receiving a large mead of popularity, but some day it is accorded it as it is a comfortable and convenient garment for warm weather wear.

A charming costume of old rose linen is presented in the upper figure, the gown suggesting Princess construction in the puffed front and back but evincing the high waistline at the sides, which are concealed by the Eton. Straps of black satin formed the trimming, except the collar, which is of Irish crochet edged with Valenciennes.

A charming development for a suit of all white would be a jacket of coarse lace covered with tubular braid and lined with fine net, or it may be made without lining as the individual may choose. Motifs of Irish crochet lend attractiveness to the model as it is, and the same garment could be applied with advantage to net or silk.

This model is suitable for reproduction in various fabrics, figured foulard with a jacket of plain color satin or net, another combination that will be found attractive.

While simple in style, as represented, it may be richly trimmed if fancy dictates, braiding being the simplest method of elaboration.

The smart tailored model shown in the lower figure is unusually pleasing and presents a touch of novelty introduced in the rows of stitching which trim the lower edge of the jacket. This model is particularly good for development in linen or wash fabrics although very pretty for mohair or Shantung. The skirt is one of the new yoke styles having a straight plaited flounce and lending itself readily to laundering.

While both suits are extremely simple the question of elaboration is easily decided by the material used, the purpose for which intended suggesting the possibilities and the "to be or not to be," of garniture. Piping of contrasting color, strappings, or braid of self color are among the garnitures that may be safely chosen.

HEINZE HINTS AT A "MASTER MIND"

Says There Is Systematic Attempt to Ruin Him.

New York, Aug. 13.—Another arrest has been made in the circle of complexities surrounding young Donald Persch, the note broker, who is charged with the larceny of $110,000 worth of copper stocks put up as collateral with the Windsor Trust company to secure a loan of $50,000 made by M. M. Joyce, a broker for F. Augustus Heinze. W. L. Clark, another note broker, but representing Joyce, who is the complainant against Persch, was arrested in the district attorney's office charged with the larceny of $10,000, said to be part of profits from the curb sales of the stock, which Joyce supposed safe in the vaults of the Windsor Trust company until he was astonished to buy part of the shares back in the open market. Clark was later released on $12,000 bail. His arrest is based on two checks drawn in his favor by Persch, one for $488.75 and the other for $10,009.92. The checks were drawn a few days after the loan had been closed.

Persch, freed on a writ of habeas corpus, was promptly re-arrested, charged this time with the specific larceny of $44,000, which the district attorney's office sets as his share of the profit of the alleged swindle. Bail was this time fixed at $50,000, which Persch failed to secure.

Persch's counsel was indignant at his re-arrest. "This is the most remarkable case I ever heard of," he said. "I intend to open upon the floodgates and will see that several men are swept away if I find it necessary to save this boy. He has been the tool for men higher up. He knows of the transaction. If these accusations are not withdrawn, I will give the district attorney evidence that will create a sensation in the financial world."

This statement by counsel for Persch agrees with the opinion of Mr. Nott of the district attorney's office, who has said plainly that he expects to uncover a widespread conspiracy to sell hypothecated stocks here and in other cities. Mr. Nott, however, seems to think the scheme was only a way to make easy money, whereas friends of Heinze still persist that there has been a systematic attempt, organized by a "master mind," to ruin him.

The court will then prepare its report and forward it to the navy department.

Woman's World

WORK OF KATHERINE WRIGHT

Helped Her Brothers With Money and Made Their Calculations.

Without meaning to detract in any way from the greatness of Wilbur and Orville Wright, says Hampton's Magazine, it can be claimed that but for a woman they would today probably be repairing bicycles or automobiles for a living. That woman is their sister, Miss Katherine Wright.

There is no prettier story than the devotion of the members of the Wright family each to the other. There were five children, four boys and a girl. One of the boys left home early and now resides in Kansas. Another became a bookkeeper and had a family of his own to look after.

The sister fitted herself for teaching and secured a place in the public schools of Dayton, O. Wilbur and Orville remained at home with their parents and this sister. About the time the two brothers got through school the bicycle craze was at its height, and they engaged in bicycle repairing as a business.

It was while conducting this business that they began working upon a machine which developed into the flying machine. Their original idea was to make a toy, a sort of aerial toboggan upon which a fellow could have fun.

They constructed a plane of that kind and found that so long as it moved forward it would support them. Then the idea of attaching a motor to it and driving it forward entered their minds.

It was at this critical period in their careers that the aid of the sister was sought. She had taken an interest in the gliding machine, but when they began talking about flying machines she grew enthusiastic. Right away Wilbur and Orville Wright, with the aid of their sister, took up the serious study of aeronautics.

They read everything printed on the subject, the sister ordering the books for them as they learned of the volumes that had appeared. They did not believe everything they read in the books, and that was their salvation in a sense.

Miss Wright made the calculations and her brothers made the experiments. The three worked together. Before any demonstration was made, before her brothers had tested the machine they were building, Miss Wright knew that it was possible for man to fly.

She was the first woman in the world to know it positively. She knew it because she herself had made the calculations. She was willing to stake what little money she had saved from her salary as a schoolteacher, along with the smaller amount her brothers had saved, upon the outcome of the device to be made according to her calculations. She staked it and she won.

When the machine was completed and was found to be a success and it became desirable to get in touch with the nations of the world, it was Katherine Wright who brought the aeroplane to the attention of the men who would have to be dealt with. The letters which the representatives of foreign governments received were written by this woman in the name of her brothers.

All this time Miss Wright was going daily to the schoolroom. Even their neighbors did not know she took any interest in the flying machine. They knew that it was characteristic of the Wrights to be devoted to one another, but they did not know that this patient schoolteacher had mastered the intricacies of the air and that she had been in correspondence with governments carrying on the promotion end of the flying machine.

Even after the Wright aeroplane had become famous and her brothers were demonstrating it to the world Miss Wright continued her occupation of teaching. It was not until Orville Wright met with the accident at Fort Myer which came near costing him his life that she gave up her position and hastened to him. She remained until he was able to travel, took him home, nursed him to health and accompanied him on his recent trip to France.

Miss Wright has always been modest and retiring. In the schoolroom she was popular, despite the fact that she was exacting. She is one woman who has proved that she could keep a secret.

Jacksonville, Ill., Aug. 13.—At Franklin, this county, a daring bank robbery took place when a bandit secured $2,500 in currency from the cashier of the Farmers' and Merchants' bank. One suspect has been arrested. Clad like a farmer, a man appeared at the cashier's desk and asked to exchange some bills of small denominations for larger ones. The cashier went to the vault to get the bills. When he emerged the robber was inside the railing and covered him with a revolver, demanding the bank's cash. A posse was organized by the sheriff. The bank is insured against robbery.

Woman's Beauty

Some women retain their beauty to an advanced age. But women, who regularly endure pain, age rapidly, for suffering leaves its lasting marks on them.

Nearly all women suffer more or less with some form of female trouble. It should not be neglected. Avoid the pain—treat yourself at home by taking Cardui, as thousands of other women have done. Begin at once and give Cardui a fair trial.

TAKE CARDUI

It Will Help You

Mrs. Katie Burlison, Goreville, Ill., tried Cardui and writes: "I suffered with female troubles, and was so sick I could not stand on my feet. Finally I began to take Cardui, and soon began to mend. Now I am able to do all my housework and am in much better health than I was before." Try it.

THERE is only one way to learn to spell correctly and that is to get down and dig it out. There are no short cuts. Every word must be learned separately and then remembered.
 Every one who can spell at all should be able to write his own vocabulary correctly.

THE former governor of Minnesota, Samuel R. Van Sant, is the new commander-in-chief of the Grand Army.
 He served through the war with the Ninth Illinois cavalry. His opponent in this capital. It is stated here that William A. Ketchan, of Indianapolis, former attorney general.

WHEN the farmer looks over the market quotations and learns what he can get for his corn, wheat, cattle, hogs, or anything else, he has to sell he must conclude that he has little ground for complaint. No class of men have been more prosperous for the last twelve years than the farmers.
 They deserve all the prosperity they are enjoying.

THE fall term of school is approaching and the parents should endeavor to have their children enroll and begin work the first day. The first day is just as important to one pupil as another. The pupil who starts the second day or second week does not get an even start with those who enroll the first day. A good beginning is always an advantage. The best conducted school is the one where the parents, pupils and teachers are in hearty cooperation and one of the most helpful things the parents can do is to see that their children are enrolled the first day and are regular in attendance throughout the year.

The Silver Question.

When you see silverware scratched and tarnished with black stains and streaks in the interstices of the ornamental patterns, that is dirt, left there by common, cheap rosin soaps.
 It is better to use a soap that is antiseptic as well as a perfect cleansing agent. "Easy Task soap," the hard, white laundry soap, will clean your silverware quickly and surely. It will get out the dirt the other soaps have left. Your grocer will sell you two cakes for ten cents, and if it doesn't satisfy you the makers will give back your dime.

MEXICO RENT BY FACTIONS

Rumors of Serious Trouble
 Come Out.

COAHUILA DEFIES DIAZ

For the First Time in Mexico's Political History During the Past Quarter of a Century, a Federal Mandate
 Has Been Disregarded by a State Legislature—Troops Are on the Move to Saltillo and Monterey to Quell Threatened Disturbance—
 Other States Are Becoming Agitated.

Mexico City, Aug. 14.—Despite official denials, rumors of trouble in the border states of Nuevo Leon and Coahuila are being persistently circulated in this capital. It is stated here that Miguel Cardenas, the governor of the state Coahuila, who was asked to resign recently by President Diaz and who announced his intention of complying with the request, has changed

PRESIDENT DIAZ.

his mind. According to telegrams from Saltillo, the capital of Coahuila, the state legislature adjourned without taking action on the resignation of the present governor. If this is true, it will be the first time in the political history of Mexico during the past quarter century that a federal mandate has been disregarded by a state legislature.

Telegrams to El Imparcial, the official organ of the administration, say that considerable excitement reigns at Saltillo and Monterey, the capitals respectively of Coahuila and Nuevo Leon. The Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth infantry have arrived at Saltillo from San Luis Potosi. The Eighth infantry has been ordered to proceed north. The Second regiment of cavalry has been ordered to the town of Gomez Palacio, in the state of Coahuila. The jefe politico of this zone, Juan Castillo, a Reyes adherent, has been recently removed from office.

According to the correspondent of El Imparcial, Governor Cardenas and Governor Reyes of Nuevo Leon are working together. The same authority says the state legislature, with the exception of two members, are partisans of General Reyes, who has been prominently mentioned as a candidate for the vice presidency in opposition to Ramon Corral, the administration candidate.

Governor Cardenas has telegraphed the Daily Record as follows: "In reply to your message, I have to say that it is inexact that I have entertained the proposition of retaining the governorship of this state, and on the contrary, I am preparing my resignation, which will be presented in a day or two. Coahuila is tranquil."

Excitement also reigns in the state of Sinaloa, where Diego Redi, the administration candidate, has been declared elected.

Mexico Nuevo, the organ of the opposition, openly charges the grossest frauds on the part of the administration election officials. They claim to have proofs that Jose Ferrel, the candidate of the Revista party, was elected by a majority of over 4,000 votes, despite the voting of children, women and the inmates of asylums and prisons.

Not So, Says Monterey.

Monterey, Mexico, Aug. 14.—There is no foundation for the reports sent out from Mexico City of political unrest. The political atmosphere was never more tranquil than at the present time.

Curtiss to Try It Today.

Rheims, Aug. 14.—Glenn H. Curtiss, the American aviator, expects to make a trial flight this afternoon. Mr. Curtiss hopes to compete during aviation week in the endurance test and the passenger carrying event; but these trials necessarily will be subordinated to the race for the James Gordon Bennett cup, to win which was the principal object of his visit to Rheims.

IMPROVEMENT MANIFEST

Bradstreet's Weekly Review of Trade Continues Encouraging.

New York, Aug. 14.—"Improvement is more manifest in general trade and industry this week," says Bradstreet's weekly review of trade today, "but there is still present the feeling of conservatism hitherto noted, which makes for small and frequent rather than heavy individual sales. Developments have been largely favorable, chief among these the increased arrivals of buyers in most markets, a greater disposition to take hold for fall and spring delivery, a very favorable government crop report, the continuance of the marked strength in security markets, the growing firmness of the time money market. Trade with first hands in dry goods is fair, while jobbing trade expands most rapidly, and retail trade is now engaged in digesting the remnants of summer business. The railroad situation is improving and idle cars are disappearing on the western lines as the winter wheat movement enlarges. Industries are active, iron and steel leading, with railroads reported buying freely of rails, cars and locomotives."

THE FIGHT GAME IS GIVEN A SETBACK

Governor Marshall Takes Hand at Terre Haute.

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 14.—Last night warrants were issued for the arrest of eight of the principals in the recent boxing contest given by the Terre Haute Athletic association on July 26. Nat Thornton and William Turner, two of the boxers, have been arrested and the other arrests are expected to be made soon. Principals in the fights were Marvin Hart, Michael Schreck, Mickey Ford, William York, Thomas Scanlon, Andrew Newell and Thornton and Turner. The arrests are said to be the result of a statement by Governor Thomas R.
 Marshall that he considered the contests prize fights.

In the Hart-Schreck fight Hart's jaw was broken and he was saved from a knock-out in the third round by his seconds.

PRINTERS' BURIAL FUND

It Is Now Proposed to Increase the Mortuary Benefit.

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 14.—The fifty-fifth annual convention of the International Typographical union has adopted a plan for establishing a mortuary benefit fund. It provides for benefits ranging from $75 to $400, according to the length of membership, and will be submitted to a referendum vote of the printers some time next February. A tax on all earnings of one-half of one per cent is proposed.
 The members of the union now earn about $40,000,000 a year, so the income will be about $200,000 a year.

Private Sitting Today.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 14.—The court of inquiry investigating the death on Oct. 13, 1907, of Lieutenant James N.
 Sutton, jr., United States marine corps, is sitting in private to discuss the findings, which will when reached be for-forwarded to the navy department at Washington, whence the announcement of the result of the inquiry will be made. The judge advocate said he would request that this announcement be made at the earliest possible moment.

New Yorkers Interested.

New York, Aug. 14.—A large delegation of New York automobile enthusiasts has made arrangements for special railroad transportation to the auto races next week on the Indianapolis motor speedway, which is said to be the greatest automobile race course in the country.

Strong Healthy Women

If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the many women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can be remedied.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Cures the weaknesses and disorders of women.
 It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in motherhood, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic.

"Favorite Prescription" banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits.

It Makes Weak Women Strong. It Makes Sick Women Well.
 Honest druggists do not offer substitutes, and urge them upon you as "just as good." Accept no secret nostrum in place of this non-secret remedy. It contains not a drop of alcohol and not a grain of habit-forming or injurious drugs. Is a pure glyceric extract of healing, native American roots.

SHADOW OF STRIKE PASSED AT CHICAGO

Street Railway Trouble Amicably Settled.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—The last shadow of the trouble between the street railway companies of this city and their employees, which threatened to lead to a strike of great proportions, has passed away. Formal peace under a three-and-a-half-year contract was agreed upon at a meeting between the officials of the companies and of the unions.

The proposition made by President John M. Roach of the North and West Side lines, which foreshadowed peace, was later made to the South Side unions by President T. E. Mitten of the South Side lines. It was accepted by President M. E. Buckley, representing the union men.

Walter L. Fisher, the city's representative in the conferences, who has acted as mediator in the trouble by virtue of the city's partnership in the lines, made this statement: "The controversy is settled to the satisfaction of all parties."

The new men are given 23 cents an hour for the first six months, 24 cents for the next six months, 25 cents for second year, 26 cents for the third year, and 27 cents until the contract expires Feb. 1, 1913.

For Pinchot and Newell.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 14.—With the election of officers, the selection of Pueblo, Col., as the next meeting place, the passage of resolutions commending both the efforts of Pinchot and Newell in the forestry and reclamation bureaus, asking a $10,000,000 irrigation fund from congress, and commending the Mississippi deep waterways, the seventh National Irrigation congress ended. B. A. Fowler of Phoenix, Ariz., was elected president, and Arthur Hooker, Spokane, secretary.

Old Soldiers' Reunion.

Salt Lake City, Aug. 14.—With a fireworks display on Ensign peak, the forty-third national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic ended last night. By the close vote of 307 to 293, Atlantic City was chosen over St. Louis as the place for the next encampment, after a spirited fight. For chaplain, Rev. Daniel Ryan of Columbus, Ind., won the honor from Rev. Thomas Harwood of New Mexico, by a vote of 330 to 233.

After the final details of the convention were disposed of Commander-in-Chief VanSant and his fellow officers elective and appointive were installed.

The Woman's Relief Corps elected Mrs. Fannie W. D. Harden of Denver senior vice president, and Mrs. Jennie La Jones of Salt Lake, junior vice president.

SAVING ON A SYSTEM.

Figures Showing How a Competency May Be Accumulated.

A young man who would have a competency at the end of ten years must make sacrifices for the first two or three years. Say that you, for instance, are earning $30 a week. At the present time you may be spending nearly all of this, as thousands of others are doing. Now, during the first year, you must save $1,000. "Why," you exclaim, "if I should save $1,000 a year that would make $10,000 at the end of ten years, without counting the interest! You're off in your figuring!"

But wait. We are supposing now that you are having your share of prosperity and that at different times within the next few years you will have doctors' bills to pay, and may even be without employment at times. These things must be taken into consideration if you would save $10,000 in ten years.

So the first year you save $1,000. This leaves you a little less than $11 a week upon which to live during that time. Perhaps you will have to move out of your present home and rent one that is cheaper. For a time it will also be necessary for you to contract fewer tailoring bills, and in all probability you will get your wife to aid you in economizing; but you must save $1,000 during that year and you will find that you can do it.

In the second year your load will become lighter, and then you will see why it was necessary for you to save $1,000 during the first year. The $1,000 you can easily place out at 5 per cent interest, and at the end of the second year it will have earned you $50. So during this second year you have to save $950. In other words, you have $1 a week more to spend on the comforts of life during the second year than the first. In this way your load continues to get lighter and lighter. You begin your third year with $2,000 out at interest, and during this year you need save only $900, which leaves you $2 a week more to spend than during the first year; and so it goes until at the end of your fifth year you are saving only $750 a year, or less than one-half of your $1,500 salary. Each year you have more to spend. At the end of your eighth year you are saving just $12.50 a week, while you have $17.50 to spend.

At the end of your tenth year you have $10,000, which is earning you $500 a year, and which may even bring you $600 or $700 a year if you invest it well. If you were only 30 years of age when you began saving you are still too young to retire on $50 a month; but now you can spend all that you earn, and at the end of another ten years, if you do not gather the "honey" which your $10,000 is making for you, you will be worth a little over $17,000, which, at 6 per cent, will bring you an income of $85 a month for the rest of your life.

A modification of the above scheme can be made to work to the profit of any wage earner, no matter what his weekly earnings may be, granting, of course, that they are sufficient to live upon comfortably. For instance, if the man who earns $15 a week could save $7 a week for fourteen years he would have acquired a little fortune of $5,000.—Bookkeeper.

LITTLE BABY ADELE.

Complaint of Girl Who Ran Away and Fooled Everybody.

Nothing could have convinced the parents of Adele Boas, the 13-year-old girl who set the town by the ears when she ran away the other day, that she could have devised that get-away all by herself. "Never, never!" said they when it was suggested, "Why, she was never permitted to be alone for a moment. She knew nothing of the ways of the world. She was actually babyish in her manner and thoughts. She was not as mature as other children of her age. And she was so happy at home! She never dreamed of giving one of us a sharp answer."

Fine! And this perfectly contented little miss, who couldn't go on the street without a maid to guide her, and who never had a thought that her parents didn't know before she did, proved herself as self-reliant and capable and shrewd a youngster as one could find in a day's trot, the New York Times correspondent of the Cincinnati Times-Star says. She went to Boston by herself, and stopped over night at a hotel in perfect self-possession, and found a job and a quiet lodging house, and chattered broken English to those who suspected her identity until they were convinced that she was the delicate little German girl she claimed to be. Only a sudden attack of homesickness brought her little voyage of discovery to an end. Except for that, she had outwitted everyone with whom she came in contact. And she is but 13 years old, and "immature and babyish." She is the one could never be trusted on the street except a maid accompanied her. She never had a thought her parents didn't know first. "I got tired of being treated like a baby," said the girl, passionately, when she was returned to her home. "I am fed by the collar as though I were a tame dog. I am not trusted even to go across the street alone. I haven't even the slightest liberty. I know my parents love me, and that their care is dictated by that love. But I am no longer a little child and I do not want to be treated so."

Maybe there's a lesson to other parents concealed in that girl's revolt against an affront to her adolescent dignity.

ONE ART OF SALESMANSHIP.

Stores Where the Clerks Are Too Smart for Their Own Good.

"There are some shops," said the man, according to the New York Sun, "where they practice an art of salesmanship that does not pay in the long run. I used occasionally to go to one such place to buy furnishings, ties, collars, etc., but I have quit it now."

"One time I went in to buy a necktie of a sort that was advertised by samples in the window. I had a hard time trying to get the salesman to let me have what I wanted. First of all he tried to sell me a tie of another sort and quality considerably more expensive than those displayed in the window."

"When that wouldn't work he refused at first and later very grudgingly agreed to take a tie out of the window. Then he pestered me with all sorts of requests to buy shirts, underwear and pajamas, meantime holding the tie I had selected instead of wrapping it up. He was one of those persons who mistake a courteous refusal for weakness and finally I had to be rude to get my tie and get out."

"I make up my mind after that to stay away from there, and I did until one day when I was walking with a young woman a sudden rainstorm came up. I had to get an umbrella and this place was the nearest at hand. The young woman went in with me while I selected an umbrella."

"After I had picked one by handle and price the salesman calmly took off the cover and made ready to put it one side. I was astonished, but the young woman was more self-possessed. Remarkably, I believe we paid for that," she took the cover away with her. The salesman looked at us as if we had done something wrong and not he.

"I know perfectly well the persons who own that store think they have a smart and capable lot of salesmen, but they won't get me back there again, no matter how pressing the necessity."

A Bad Man.

Herman Whitaker wrote a story of the Tehuantepec rubber plantation Guadalupe, the mandador on one plantation at which Mr. Whitaker stayed, was informed that he was to be one of the characters in his story. "He never failed to question me each day as to the things I had made him do—in the story," said Mr. Whitaker. "When one morning I informed him that I had killed him off, he expressed great surprise."

"Porque, señor, porque?" "Because you are a bad man, Guadalupe." Which was perfectly true. "I, señor," he questioned, greatly surprised.

"Si, Guadalupe, you are bad. Think of how many men you have killed, according to your own count."

"He thought for awhile, then looked up with a humorous smile. 'Oh, well! Did I put up a good fight?'"

"You bet you did, Guadalupe."

"Whereupon eyebrows and shoulders went up in a shrug. 'Bueno! Bueno! Then it ees all right.'—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

United States Pension Burden.

For the last sixteen years the United States has carried nearly a million names on its military pension roll. The maintenance of the high figures is due to the pension list of the war with Spain and other quarrels of recent years, but each year brings its list of new names of veterans of the Civil War. The year 1908 saw the addition of 10,935 names on the Civil War account, although more than forty years have passed since the war ended. Total payments on the Civil War account exceed $3,500,000,000. The appropriation for 1909 is in round figures $161,000,000. The number of beneficiaries cannot, of course, be given. The decrease in the roll of last year was 54,366, but the addition of nearly 40,000 new names left the net decrease at about 15,700. In 1905 the payments averaged 136.96 a pensioner. In 1907 the average was $145.60, and in 1908 it reached $167.50.

A Dreadful Analogy.

The hypothetical question had just been asked, and the prisoner fell forward in a faint. All was confusion in the court room.

"What is the matter with the prisoner?" demanded the judge, hammering his desk madly.

"Nothing, your honor," groaned the unhappy man as he came to. "I was only thinking how long I should have to serve if my sentence was as long as that."—Harper's Weekly.

THE COUNTRY CHILD.

The Country Child has fragrances

He breathes about him as he goes; Clear eyes that look at distances, And in his cheeks the wilding rosea dignity.

The sun, the sun himself will stain The country face to his own red, The red-gold of the ripening grain, And bleach to white the curly head.

He rises to the morning lark, Sleeps with the evening primroses, Before the curtain of the dark Lets down its splendor, starred with bees.

He sleeps so sweet without a dream Under brown cottage eaves and deep, His window holds one stray moon-beam, As though an angel kept his sleep.

He feeds on honest country fare, Drinks the clear water of the spring, Green carpets wait him everywhere, Where he may run, where he may sing.

He hath his country lore by heart, And what is friend, and what is foe; Hath conned Dame Nature's book apart, Her child since he began to grow.

When he is old, when he goes sad, Hobbling upon a twisted knee, He keeps somewhat of joys he had Since an old countryman is he.

He keeps his childhood's innocences, Though his old head be bleached to snow, Forget-me-nots still hold his eyes, And in his cheeks old roses blow. —Spectator.

Rastus' Capture

"Rastus! Ra-s-tus! Wha' in de ole Nick hab dat chile gone to now, I wonder?"

Mammy stood on the porch, peering down the wooded lane in a vain effort to discover the truant. The fragrant pines nodded their stately heads, casting long shadows across the drive and bowing before the balmy breeze.

"Rastus N-a-p-o-l-e-o-n! Wha' is yo', yo' good fo' nuffin!—Good Lawd a massy! Wha's dat?"

A thundering crash from the direction of the kitchen caused Mammy to gather up her skirts and skurry hither. A scene of havoc and ruin met her gaze. A chair, two dishes and a jar of preserves lay in a confused mixture

"Wha' is yo'?"

upon the floor, while the family cat, sleeping before the fireplace, had been deluged by a pan of milk upset in the fall, and with a bushy tail and bedraggled appearance viewed the wreck from the top of the old-fashioned clock. Not a human being was in sight, but the mark of a human footprint left in the jam upon the floor was to the old woman's mind convincing evidence, and her black eyes fairly snapped as she muttered:

"Rastus Napoleon, you'll settle for dis."

Mammy's diagnosis, which had been aided by several similar experiences, proved correct: From beneath the bushes that clustered in jungle-like profusion on the east side of the old mansion peered two sparkling eyes. Rastus knew his position was secure as the rock of Gibraltar. Experience had long before taught him that personal seclusion was a necessity after "accidents" of this character, and he hoped the space of a few hours would in some degree assuage Mammy's wrath. He lay there, ruminating on the prospect of supper, until the soft, fragrant atmosphere sent over him a delightful, drowsy sensation; as the boy was about to doze off, through the library window came the sound of voices that hitherto softly mingled with the hum of bees, now rising in angry cadence, until he plainly heard Squire Thompson say:

"Young man, your presumption is more than I can endure. You have had the audacity to ask for my daughter's hand—"

"But you knew of our attachment months ago and did not forbid it."

"I—ah—well, you know very well that you have no income—that is, nothing to speak of. Richard Harrol has asked Ethel to be his wife. His resources are unlimited, and for my child's sake I shall insist that she accept him."

"You have no charges against my personal character."

"None at all."

"Then, sir, your decision is mercenary and cruel."

"Wha—what did you say, young man?"

"It is not necessary for me to repeat it, only to add that for sordid motives you will break your daughter's heart."

"Charles Gordon, do you know—"

"Pardon me, squire, but I realize the uselessness of prolonging this interview. Allow me to bid you good-afternoon."

There was the closing of a door and the noises ceased.

"Je—mimi!" whistled Rastus to himself. "Ef dat ain't a row den I's white! An' all over dat highfalutin' man, wha's only been here tree weeks. Dat's why Miss Ethel cries all de time—an' here he comes now."

Up the wooded lane walked two men, one attired in the latest fashion, the other dressed most quietly, but with a sinister, repelling countenance. "Come now, Jack," he was saying, "don't be hard on a fellow when the prey is so nearly within our grasp."

"Our grasp!" the other repeated with a sneer. "You say that nice, but I've heard you talk before, Dick Malby. You owe me something on that other deal, and I say square old accounts before you open new ones."

"But I haven't got a cent, Jack. I had a talk with the old man this morning, and he promised me his daughter's hand. He will make her a wedding gift of five thousand dollars, and half of that is yours the minute I get my hands upon it."

"Ugh! That's all right as it sounds, but I want my money."

"Well, how are you going to get it?"

"Just this way." A wicked gleam flashed from the speaker's eye. "You know the reward down in New Orleans—that's waiting for the man who pipes you off?"

"You wouldn't dare!"

"Wouldn't I? You owe me a good sum, and that would square accounts."

"But be reasonable for a short time, man. I can't get the money."

"The old gent has got a safe full of gold and a house full of silverware. You'll help me crack the ranch, and nobody will know you were in it, and I'll call it square. Is it a go?"

"What do I get?"

"One-third of the plate."

"I'm with you."

The two strolled down the winding path. The twilight had deepened into dusk when Rastus crawled cautiously from his hiding place, and glancing in all directions to make sure that his mother or her emissaries were not in the vicinity, skurried away.

The mantle of the night had fallen over the great white house. All was silent within and without. The large, old-fashioned clock in the dining room ticked slowly, and with a great deal of preparatory whirring made ready to strike the hour of three. Suddenly, among the acacia bushes just outside the library window there was a rustling sound, not as of the breeze stirring the foliage, but as though a human foot had trodden upon a dry twig. For a moment all was still, then there was a cautious scraping at the sash. Presently, with a clink, the piece of glass was removed, and a hand came through the aperture, feeling for the window catch. The sash was gently raised, and a head covered with a piece of crape surmounted by a tattered hat was thrust inside.

The man drew himself through the opening and passed noiselessly into the dining room. Soon he returned, and leaning over the sill murmured:

"Curse it, Dick, come up yourself!"

Another man mounted the ladder, and the two went into the dining room. Suddenly from behind the tall old clock darted a little black object. A rush of wind, a bang, and the door between the library and dining room was fast. Then there was a shout, and the hall was filled with men. Aroused by the noise, Squire Harford was one of the first to appear.

"What does this mean?" he thundered. "Who are you, and what—?" But with a crash the dining room door had been broken open and the two prisoners dragged forth. With his hands on the collar of one of them Charles Gordon said:

"It means that you were to have been robbed—and murdered had you shown any resistance. Rastus overheard the plot and warned me. He was secreted behind the clock, and succeeded in performing a brave act. Now, squire, look well at this villain!" And the young man tore away the mask from the face of Richard Harrol.

"I have been a fool, Charlie," said the squire, when he had recovered from his surprise. "Come and see Ethel to-morrow. As for you, you imp of darkness," he went on, turning to Rastus, "you are a brave boy, and I shall not forget what you have done."

Rastus grinned with delight, but suddenly catching sight of his mother among the crowd of frightened servants in the doorway he became very grave, and looking confidently into the squire's face, asked:

"Does I git licked for taking dat jam?"—Waverley Magazine.

The Colleges of Oxford.

Each college is built round a quadrangle with a large entrance gateway which often rises into a quasi tower. The rooms immediately over the gateway are invariably designed for the residence of the warden, provost or principal of the college, so that the eye of the master may be over all who enter or leave the place. The mode of building still exists in India, having been introduced into Europe by the Moors when they conquered Spain, where we find that the compound, or quad, is still used for the gathering of all kinds of animals. Around the quad are arranged the chapel, library, hall or refectory, president's lodgings, buttery and kitchen. The students' rooms generally occupy the upper floors. William of Wickham, the celebrated architect, wisely placed his taller buildings—the chapel and hall—on the north side to keep off the cold winds, the lower buildings on the south more freely admitting sunshine.

Money may make the mare go, but it falls down when it attempts to start a stubborn mule down the pike.

RAM'S HORN BLASTS.

Warning Notes Calling the Wicked to Repentance.

"I shall not want" is always the song of the soul in which there is no doubt. Whoever gives his body to be burned and has not love, throws away his ashes.

No greater mistake can be made than to make the accumulation of riches the first business of life.

It hurts more to live a day without prayer than without bread.

Suppose there are hypocrites in the church; does that make your sinning any safer?

Begin every day with this thought: What happens to-day will be what God sees is best.

The man who loves sin is a sinner, no matter how much he pays for a pew in church.

The Christian never has to count his cash to find out how much he has to be thankful for.

A cold church will soon begin to warm up when God's fire is burning in the preacher's heart.

Unless we say "Our Father" in our money getting, we cannot worship God by saying it in church.

Without consistent Christian life to back up the preacher, there is no use in ringing the church bell.

The lantern that only shines when the sun shines will never be of any service to those who are lost.

Isn't there a strong touch of hypocrisy in thanking God for the bread and finding fault with the cook?

The preacher who puts thought into his sermons will, sooner or later, find himself preaching to people who think.

A FLOWER OF HISTORY.

Iris Very Prominent in French and Japanese History and Literature.

Charge for the golden lilies! Upon them with the lance!

Every schoolboy who has declaimed the ringing lines of "The Battle of Ivry" has learned to associate the lilies of France, no less than the white plume of her hero king, with history in its most stirring aspect. Not every school girl who follows with pride and sympathy the career of Joan of Arc, the young French peasant heroine and saint, may know, however, that they are associated even more closely with the "lily maid" of France; since, when the king ennobled her, the title he conferred—needless, but aptly chosen—made her Dame du Lis—the Lady of the Lilies.

Yet the lilies of France were not lilies at all; for the fleur-de-lis, or flower-de-luce, is certainly an iris. Medieval Florence, however, also reckoned it a lily, blazoned it on her famous gonfalon, and made it conspicuous in her splendid chronicles.

Possibly it may claim even an older and a loftier fame; for some botanists assert that it was neither scarlet amaryllis, nor meadow lily, nor blazing wild tulip, as others claim, but the stately Oriental iris, in its royal purple majesty, with which Solomon in all his glory could not compare.

Of late years Japan, the land of gardens, has added largely to our iris lore. The Japanese irises, far surpassing all others in beauty and variety, bear fanciful, often poetic, names, which it is a pity our prosaic nurserymen so seldom translate.

One lovely white variety is Moonlight; another, Moonlight on Foam; one faintly flushed is Dawn on the Mountain; a striped sort, waving in the wind, has acquired the name of Dancing Tiger; and there are also a Dancing Bear, a Dancing Lion and a Heron's Feather.

The iris gardens of Japan are wonders of loveliness; and in the most famous the little maids who serve the visiting crowds with tea in the pretty summer houses are carefully arrayed in iris hues.

On one especial day, May 5, it is customary for all houses to display graceful arrangements of iris, hung beneath the eaves; and at all the public baths buds and petals of the iris are cast afloat upon the water to delight the bathers with their scent and color.

Especially is one homelier kind the flower of the Japanese women; for centuries-old tradition tells that once, in time of famine, it was decreed that all cultivable land must be planted to food crops only; but the women, unwilling to forego their orris-powder, made from the tuberous roots, cleverly transferred their irises to the sods of the thatched roofs, where they grew and flourished. Certain it is that this iris—the iris tectorum—is still so planted in Japan, and thrives in purple splendor, cresting the humblest farms.

Foretold.

"Well, Mrs. Dennis, what are you going to give Pat for Christmas this year?" inquired the recipient of Mrs. Dennis' regular wash-day visits, one day at the beginning of the festive season.

"Deed thin, ma'am, I don't know," replied Mrs. Dennis, raising herself from the wash-tub and setting her dripping arms akimbo. "I did be thinkin' I'd give him a pair of pants, but Lord bless ye, ma'am, only last night didn't be come home wid a pair on."—Success Magazine.

For reasons unnecessary to mention some people never have brain fog.

"It's dreadful the way our Freddie and the other boys abuse that poor little Mat Brown," said Mrs. Smith to her husband one evening.

"What do the young rascals do to him?" inquired Smith.

"Why, they chase him all about. This afternoon, for the fourth or fifth time in a week, I saw the whole crowd of boys of the neighborhood who play together assemble on the vacant lot across the street and then begin to chase poor little Mat. They gave him a start of twenty or thirty feet and then they all ran down the alley, around the block and back to the starting point, with all the speed there was in their legs. Little Mat is rather plump, you know, and he was red as a lobster and all out of breath. His hair was plastered down with perspiration. But he was not allowed to rest more than a minute before they started him off again and chased him as hard as ever."

"Maybe he liked it," said Smith.

"Why, how could he? It was awfully unfair. He had no chance against so many and he was simply compelled to run, hot and tired as he was. And our Freddie seemed to be the leader of that heartless gang. I do hope Mrs. Brown did not see how Mat was treated. He's such a nice boy. I can't see why they treat him so."

"Why don't you speak to Freddie about it?" asked Smith.

"I will. If he does not want Mat to play with him and the other boys he should be manly enough to tell him so, instead of chasing the life out of the poor child."

Freddie came in so late for supper that evening that Mrs. Smith had to postpone her talk with him till bed time. Then she took up the matter in earnest.

"Freddie," she said, "why are not you and Mat Brown good friends any longer? What was your quarrel about?"

"I didn't have no quarrel with him, ma," said Freddie, astonished.

"You didn't! Why, you treat him shamefully."

"Who, me? What did I do to Mat Brown? He's my pal."

"Well, then, why do you chase the life out of him? I've noticed that for the last four or five afternoons you boys have been simply barbarous in your treatment of that poor child. The idea of a whole crowd of boys getting after one boy the way you do! If his mother ever sees what you do to Mat you may be sure she'll put a stop to it. I am sorry that my little boy is so very rude and unmanly."

During this speech Freddie had listened with open eyes and mouth, speechless with astonishment.

"Aw, ma," he said, when he finally got over his surprise, "you don't know nothin' about boys. We ain't any of us got it in for Mat. He's my pal. I like him, and we all like him—that's why we chase him every day. Don't you see, we want him to be on our ball team this summer, and he's too fat. He weighs 102 pounds, and he ain't supposed to weigh no more than 95. So we make him run for an hour every day till we get him down to the right weight. He can't be on the ball team until he trains down. We all want him, 'cuz he kin pitch bully. He used to weigh 104 pounds before we started makin' him run. We've got two pounds off him already. We're trainin' him, that's all. We ain't got it in for Mat."

"What strange creatures boys are!" sighed Freddie's mother, much relieved.—Chicago Daily News.

PLEA FOR CHURCH-GOING.

In the good olden days the Sunday sermon was the intellectual treat of the week, the main topic of conversation from one Sabbath to another. That day is forever past. Leslie's Weekly says. Books, magazines, daily papers, entering every home, are preaching sermons on the moral issues of life every day of the year. Yet the field of the pulpit is not pre-empted. The Christian minister may still speak with authority on the spiritual aspects of truth. The pulpit platform, with all the sacred surroundings of the sanctuary, re-enforced, too, by the preacher's personality, can make an appeal to the emotions, the imagination, the will, such as cannot come from the printed page.

But aside from the sermon itself, be it inspiring or otherwise, people ought to go to church to worship God. Should there ever arise a generation that forgets to worship at appointed times and places, moral advance will have received its deathblow. It is instinctive for man to worship a power higher than himself and it is the Christian Church which conserves this instinct. The church has always been too closely identified with the moral and intellectual progress of mankind to allow its influence to languish. Can there be an easier or simpler way for every man "to lend a hand" than to have a revival of the good habit of church-going?

Very Gently.

"How do you tell bad eggs?" queried the young housewife.

BATTLESHIP FLEET SUNK

Invading Army Now Marching Upon Boston.

CARPET TACKS TO SAVE UNION

Preparing to Resist to the Utmost, Governor Draper's Stout Forces Are Armed With Tacks With Which to Puncture the Tires of the Enemy—The Keenest Strategy is to Be Employed by General Bliss in Trying to Gain For His Invading Forces a Foothold in the Old Commonwealth.

New York, Aug. 14.—It looked to New Yorkers for a time last night as though a real war was on. In armor, on the streets, up town and down town, and at the water front, there was military activity in evidence, for 3,000 militiamen from Manhattan, Brooklyn and New Jersey were embarking in real battle array for an attack on the south shore of Massachusetts.

The national guardsmen who sailed last evening constitute the "red" army, being distinguished by flaming red bands about their campaign hats; and they represent a supposed foreign foe, which will attack the "blue" army now quartered on the Massachusetts coast.

It is planned that the great Atlantic battleship fleet, which is safely off the Virginia capes, has been sunk and that about all that remains to conquer the United States is to make a successful invasion by land forces.

The New York contingent of the "red" is under command of Colonel Daniel Appleton. The New Yorkers will join militiamen from the District of Columbia, Connecticut and New Jersey in the attack. Major General Leonard Wood, commanding the department of the east, U. S. A., will umpire the war game.

BOSTON AROUSED

Army of Invasion to Be Resisted With Carpet Tacks.

Middleboro, Mass., Aug. 14.—Boston was besieged today at noon by an armed "enemy." Landing on the southern coast of Massachusetts, the hostile force will make every effort to "capture" the metropolis of New England.

The hope of the city in the matter of defense and security must lie with Brigadier General William A. Pew, Jr., who has been designated by Governor Eben S. Draper to command the entire force of Massachusetts troops. Despite the fact that in the coming bloodless war the enemy in fighting strength and numbers will be nearly 40 per cent stronger, General Pew has no fear that Boston will be "captured." Major General Tasker H. Bliss will command the invading force.

Both generals will follow closely the regular rules of warfare. The automobile is to play an important part in the maneuvers, as the enemy, or the army of the "red," will be much stronger in this respect than the defending "blue" force, General Pew must use his wits to combat their effectiveness. One plan he will adopt is unique. By his orders Captain Charles S. Clark, quartermaster of the Eighth Infantry, has secured a barrel of giant tacks, two inches in diameter across the head and the same length on the shank. These are to be distributed over the sandy roads of Plymouth and Bristol counties, which may be used by the "red" army.

By the acknowledged rule of war an army cannot subsist without a base, and this would mean that General Bliss must "about face" and attempt to recapture his base, at the same time fighting General Pew in a place of the latter's own choosing. It is also probable that General Pew would endeavor to smash the rear guard of the "red" army at the same time.

Today and Sunday there will be no fighting, but both generals will maneuver for position and try to ascertain accurately each other's real location.

Willie Lewis won from Sallor Burke in the sixth round of a scheduled ten-round fistie bout at New York.

MAP SHOWING FIRE DISTRICTS.

The districts in the First ward run from 13 to 17; in the Second ward from 23 to 27; in the Third ward from 34 to 37; in the Fourth ward from 42 to 45; in the Fifth ward from 51 to 56. By this numbering the fire bell designates the ward first and then the district, the first figure of the District number being the number of the ward.

The alarms are very simple and can readily be interpreted by any one hearing them. For instance if an alarm is turned in from District 14 the bell will first strike once, then after a short pause will strike four times in succession. If the alarm should be from District 42 the bell will strike four times in succession and then after a pause will strike twice. The alarm will always be repeated three or four times.

These alarms are sent in through the Telephone Exchange which operates the electric alarm system. If you have a telephone and a fire breaks out in your vicinity notify the Telephone Exchange at once giving the location of the fire as nearly as possible. This done the alarm is turned in immediately, the fire bell signals designating the ward and district as explained above.

SEEK TO ENJOIN ELWOOD WOMEN

Peculiar Development of the Tin Plate Strike.

COMPLAIN OF TOO MUCH NOISE

According to the Complaint the Wives and Daughters of the Strikers Are Making Life Miserable For the Strikebreakers, Wherefore the Latter Ask Court to Guard Them in Their Pursuit of Happiness—Workmen Say They Are Kept Awake by the Singing of the Women.

Elwood, Ind., Aug. 14.—A second application will be made by the American Sheet and Tin Plate company to Judge F. E. Baker of Goshen for an injunction against striking tin plate workers of this city. The application is necessary, says the management, owing to the wives and sisters of strikers having taken up the fight to make life miserable for the men who have returned to work in going to and from their homes.

In some instances, it is set forth, the women surround the homes of workmen after their return from the factory, and, by singing and hallooing, make sleep impossible. The husbands and brothers of the women, the application says, stand in the background and encourage the women to riotous deeds, and the police who escort the workmen to and from the mill, by order of the mayor, do not attempt arrest.

The business men of the city are insisting that something be done to curb the agitators and end the strife. The police department, which has been increased from eight to seventeen men, has proved wholly inadequate, the mill management says, to handle the women, either fearing to arrest them on account of the men who remain in the background, or through sympathy with the strikers' cause.

ABOUT READY FOR BUSINESS AGAIN

Tipton Bank Will Reopen Its Doors Monday.

Tipton, Ind., Aug. 14.—The First National bank stockholders have finally arranged to open the bank for business next Monday. Six hundred thousand dollars is on the way here, guarded by secret service men, and will arrive in time for business Monday. The total shortage in the bank is less than $200,000, of which $105,000 is traceable to Noah R. Marker's defalcations. If the courts should hold that the $40,000 worth of bonds held by Fletcher's National bank at Indianapolis is an asset of the First National bank of Tipton, that will reduce the bank's debt to about $160,000. The Shirts thus will stand to lose anywhere from $160,000 to $200,000, and that sum they have arranged to pay.

It is not likely there will be any receiver for the bank, but whether it will go into voluntary liquidation or be reorganized and continue in business has not been settled. But in any event the depositors will all get their money, and the loss will fall on the stockholders.

As far as future arrests are concerned, it is stated here that any arrests that are to come will be the result of grand jury action at Indianapolis, and that there is nothing in sight now that would cause the secret service men here to arrest on a warrant issued by a United States commissioner. The rumor that several arrests were expected caused considerable excitement in Tipton. It may be said in this connection, however, that Clarence W. Nichols, assistant United States district attorney, has made no statement as to proposed arrests.

It is known that the examiners have discovered irregularities in the bank, and that these irregularities are violations of the national banking laws, and therefore every one whose duty it was under the law to prevent such irregularities is liable to arrest. There are rumors of many men who have engaged in schemes financed with the bank's money, and the question involved is whether or not it was the money of the First National bank that went into the schemes. What Examiner Weir has discovered in that connection has not been made public.

Historic Courthouse Destroyed.
Lexington, Ky., Aug. 14.—The courthouse at Washington, Mason county, in which Uncle Tom, of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" fame, was sold, was struck by lightning and destroyed. The building was erected in 1794. It was the sale of the aged negro at this place that gave Harriet Beecher Stowe the basis for her story.

Girl Killed by Lightning.
Elgin, Ill., Aug. 14.—During a thunderstorm which swept over this section, Miss Jennie Jellack of Algonquin was killed by lightning. Her death was witnessed by a number of friends and relatives.

Crazed Miner Attacks Wife.
Clinton, Ind., Aug. 14.—Benjamin James, a coal miner, attacked his wife with a razor, slashing her throat and inflicting serious wounds on her arms and hands, while she attempted to save her life. James was finally overpowered and locked up. Physicians think the man is suffering from emotional insanity, caused from the heat.

Boy Killed by Lightning.
Crawfordsville, Ind., Aug. 14.—Harold Ammerman of Alamo, aged twelve, was instantly killed by lightning which struck the Alamo schoolhouse, in which he with three companions had taken refuge during a rainstorm.
